TOWNE TALKS

"Just for Fun"

By RAS BERRY

W. Johnston he was in town for a few minutes the other day gathering up shrubs for his ranch at Escondido. He says it seemed good to get back for a little while and just to make his self feel at home he leaned up against the bank bldg. and stole a few headlines from the popcorn man.

They wasn't no towne talks colyum last wk. for ye-ed. was busy trying to find out what his balance was at the bank.

A guy has to be a tight rope walker these days to maintain a financial balance. And even then he falls off on a regular basis.

Here is one that Jerry Maxwell tells. He says that when Harry Thaw seen the Chinese theatre up to Hollywood he said Ge whiz I shot the wrong architect.

They is a stenog in town that when she was invited to the book section she says oh we got on of them things with a set of encyclopedias.

I guess she thinks a sectional book case is a lot of novels by Ellinor Glyn.

Quite a lot of comment was roused up at the Col. Steel by the story about Brady Wolfe, Bill Booth and Nick Becker. Most of the talk had to do with Brady's aged auto.

Hier Taylor he says Brady's old car is just like a tree that you can tell its age by looking at the rings in the trunk. Taylor says you can tell the age of Brady's car by the layers of paint on it. He says he scraped through the layers. He says Brady paints the car every two years and they was eleven layers on it and any fool can multiply eleven by two.

Brady says well it's paid for any ways.

Hank Ulbright has took up golf. One more Torrance business gone to the dogs.

I see Jim Wolfe eating lunch with Bill Booth and I wise crack to Bill that he ain't at all particular who he eats with and Jim butts in and says no we ain't particular. Sit down yourself. And I says is that so.

Them steel men can't kid me.

I was up to the Shrine auditorium the other night to see a show and my boss she wanted to rent some opary glasses and I reached in my pants pocket and I didn't have a nickel because I have got two suits and I changed them and left my whole 85 cents in my other pants but I went out into the lobby to get the glasses and I bumped right into Chick Curtis who is a bachelor and therefore always well heeled and I touched him for some money and he pulled out a roll that would choke a ox and he peeled me off five and I says will that put you out any and he says no I have got about thirty on me and I says no wonder them burglars entered your house.

Well that was two wks. ago and I didn't run nothing about it in the paper because I didn't pay back the five until yesterday and I didn't want Chick to make it public.

Chick says he seen me coming but he couldn't get away from me on acct. he had his overcoat on.

The moral is not to wear no overcoats in Calif.

Well it wasn't a wk. later that me and the boss was going up town to have dinner on Jim Fitzhugh and his foreman they having agreed to pay for the dinner and I just paid the five back to Chick so I didn't have no money and we was going up on the st. car so we could ride back home with the Fitzhughs in their boiler and we drove our boiler down to the Tor. Pharmacy and waited for the st. car on which we have got a mileage ticket which we get in return from running P. E. advts. and just when the car was coming I said to my boss have you got the ticket and she says no you have got it and I reached in all my pockets at once and I didn't have it so with rare presence of mind I rushed into the pharmacy and high powered Mrs. Probert out of five dollars to pay our fares and we leaped on the car and then I found the ticket so I didn't have to spend any of the five but I didn't tell Jim Fitzhugh I had five because although he was our host first and always he is a Scotchman and I don't like to tempt nobody. Well Jim he didn't know I had any money and being acquainted with editors he paid for everything and there I was with a five in my pocket at the time on him and I that was a good one on him and I the next a. m. I went down to the pharmacy and pd. back the five to George so that ended the quarrel between him and Mrs. Probert over her going into the banking business.

Well after the Fitzhugh's had gave us a nice dinner and Jim had pd. for it him not knowing I had any money why they took us to the Ellis Club concert and one of the singers in the Ellis club is Chick Curtis and between acts Jim and I went out into the lobby to smoke and who should we bump into but Chick and Chick seen me and says Hello boys sorry I can't chat but they is calling for all the singers to come back on the stage and he started to run like a scared deer. And he didn't have no overcoat on.

Half a hour later the curtain went up again.

Move to Clinch California for Herbert Hoover

Statewide Organization Being Perfected to Win All Delegates

For the purpose of assuring the election of a Hoover delegation to the Republican National Convention, representative Republicans of Southern California some time ago effected a Hoover-for-President organization. This organization is now being extended and active work will shortly be in full swing.

Temporary headquarters have been opened on the ground floor of the Alexandria Hotel in Los Angeles, where supporters of Secretary Hoover are asked to file either in person or by letter, their names and addresses in order that the most energetic and comprehensive campaign may be conducted throughout the southland.

Officers of the organization, in addition to the president, are vice presidents George I. Cochran, F. P. Clark, Byron Pitts, John R. Quinn, Mrs. Florence Collins Porter, Robert M. Clarke, Harry H. Culver, G. P. Clark, Walter K. Tuller, treasurer, William Eric Fowler; secretary, W. R. Dickinson; and auditor, Geo. B. Bush.

sonality in the presidential contest. California political history does not afford another instance of such unanimity among all shades of opinion in the Republican party. It is a fact worthy not alone of consideration in the state itself, but in the nation at large that virtually every Republican man and woman of note in California has expressed a desire to become identified with the Hoover campaign.
